

CONTRIBUTORS

Brooke Baker graduated from the University of Michigan-Flint in 2001. After four years at home with a small child, she has returned to UM-F to complete an undergraduate minor before applying to graduate programs. Brooke is a 5-year veteran of the writing center and intends to focus her further study in the pedagogies of basic writing, writing collaboration, and the issues of home dialect and code-shifting.

Jonathan Ellis will graduate from Penn State, Berks in December 2007 with a B.A. in Professional Writing. He plans to begin an internship at radio station 95.1 WZZO in January. After graduation, Jonathan plans to pursue a career in creative writing.

Kevin Hubbard will graduate from Penn State, University Park in May 2007 with a B.A. in Philosophy and Political Science. He is currently developing an undergraduate thesis on the philosophical implications of the support of leading contemporary Latin American theorists for Hugo Chavez's Bolivarian Revolution in Venezuela. After graduation, Kevin plans to enroll in law school, focusing on constitutional law and jurisprudence.

Nicole Krause will graduate from Penn State University in Spring 2007 with a B.A. in Professional Writing. As an undergraduate, Nicole presented research at the National Conference on Peer Tutoring in Fall 2005. She worked as a writing fellow and was a member of the Penn State Lion Ambassador organization. Nicole plans to pursue a career in a business setting, preferably in a public relations department.

Karen Lee graduated in 2003 from New York University with a bachelor's degree in business. She wrote her article appearing in Young Scholars while taking undergraduate English courses at Drexel University in 2005. Currently, she is at Villanova University and will graduate in May 2007 with an M.A. in English. She is interested in how national identity is expressed in text and is planning on continuing her studies at the PhD level.

Andrea McMunn graduated from La Salle University in 2006 with a B.A. in Biology and English Literature. She is currently working for RadPharm, an imaging core lab that provides independent review for clinical studies. She intends to continue her education pursuing a doctorate in pharmacy, focusing on clinical research.

Lauren Petrillo graduated in May 2006 with a B.A. in English Literature from the University of Missouri, Kansas City, and is currently pursuing a second B.A. in History. She intends to continue her education in Rhetoric and Composition in graduate school, focusing on Missouri women's rhetoric.

Jessica Reifer graduated from La Salle University in 2006 with a B.A. in Biology and Psychology. She is currently pursuing a medical degree at Marshall University School of Medicine.

Catherine Sacchi is currently studying at The Ohio State University, where she received a fellowship to study in the master's program in rhetoric and composition. In May 2006, Catherine graduated from York College of Pennsylvania in York, Pennsylvania with a B.A. degree in English Literature.

Megan Trexler will graduate from West Chester University's English BSED program in May 2007. She is in the Honors College and is the recipient of two awards, the English Association of Pennsylvania State Universities (EAPSU) Outstanding English Major Award and the Viola Marple Award. She tutors in the Academic Development Program and the WCU Writing Center and is completing an internship in writing program administration at WCU and Temple University.